MEDIA RELEASE

All HCHD School-Based Clinics Offering Free Immunizations July 30

HOUSTON (July 14, 2008) – Sure it's still summer, but beat the back-to-school immunization rush and get your child's immunizations early. All of the Harris County Hospital District's School-Based Clinics will be offering free immunizations on Wednesday, July 30.

School-aged children in Harris County must have proof of current vaccinations before they are allowed to begin the school year. Parents should bring their child's immunization record to the center and any official communication from the school outlining required shots. No appointment is necessary, and all vaccines are given based on availability.
